FINAL SITTING OF R.101

DISASTER COURT.

SUMMARY OF THE EVIDENCE.

WING-COMDR. COLMORE AND THE RETURN TRIP.

RUNNING NO RISK

The inquiry into the R.101 catastrophe, on the result of which the whole policy of airship development in Great Britain depends, concluded yesterday after a twelve days' hearing extended over three weeks.

The main facts that have emerged are that the airship suffered no structural damage before she struck the ground, that the weather was not so severe as to give cause for alarm, that there was a definite danger of the gasbags chafing against small parts of the structure, that the airship experts were influenced in their decision to start by the commencement of the Imperial Conference, that one expert at least would not have been prepared to give the R.101 an airworthiness certificate, and that her final trial was carried out in conditions which did not subject her to a severe test.

Court and Findings.

Sir John Simon announced when terminating the proceedings that he could give no idea when the Court would be ready to issue its findings.

London, Dec. 5.

The determination of Wing-Commander R. B. B. Colmore, the Director of Airship Development, not to run any risk on the anticipated difficult return journey of the R.101 from India was the feature of the evidence at the twelfth day's sitting of the Court of Inquiry into the disaster.

Witness Moved.

Evidence in this connexion was given by Squadron-Leader Nixon, who was very affected emotionally, using his handkerchief and almost sobbing when giving replies to questions by Sir John Simon, the President.

Squadron-Leader Nixon testified that Wing-Commander Colmore, who was a victim of the catastrophe, had declared that even if Lord Thomson brought pressure to bear he would not risk the return trip if Major Scott, his Assistant (Flying) was not entirely satisfied that the conditions were favourable.

Emergency Towers.

Wing-Commander Colmore, he added, a long time ago urged the construction of intermediate mooring-towers, at Bagdad or Basra, and also at Malta, to meet possible emergencies.

Survivors of the wreck, Mr. H. J. Leech, Mr. Disley, the wireless operator, and Mr. Cook, a rigger, were recalled to clear up doubtful points, including how the airship behaved as the disaster broke.

Sir John Simon stated that it was important to say that that there was not the slightest apparent reason to suppose that the disaster was caused by the breakage of the control wire to the elevator fin, which expert tests had showed occurred after the disaster.

Tribute to Officers.

The R.101 enquiry came to an end at the conclusion of the further evidence by the survivors.

Sir John Simon said that the Court had already come clearly to the conclusion that Flight-Lieutenant H. C. Irwin, A.F.C., the Captain of the Airship, and all the officers aboard, were in every way competent for the job they had undertaken.

He was unable to say when the Report on the Inquiry would be issued.—Reuter.

His Excellency the Governor has fixed the 1st day of January, 1931, as the date for the coming into effect of the resolution of the Legislative Council altering the valuation percentages payable as rates.

LEAGUE WATCH ON DISARMAMENT.

FAR-REACHING PROVISION IN NEW CONVENTION.

EVERY ARM COVERED.

Geneva, Dec. 5.

The Disarmament Committee has adopted a Convention, consisting of fifty-nine articles, which provides for the abolition of the signatories from gas, bacteriological warfare. Reuter.

Later.

The draft Disarmament Convention, which will be submitted to the General Disarmament Conference to be held next year or early in 1932, covers land, sea and air armaments, and also war materials.

More important, it provides for the establishment of a Permanent Commission at Geneva, the members of which will not be representatives of governments, but watch over the execution of the present Convention and to see that its terms are carried out.

This provision is considered to be the crux of the Convention.

The Articles also cover the case of a temporary suspension of the Convention by a party to it in the event of any menace to its national security, and lay down the procedure to be followed in dealing with any complaints of the violation of the Convention. Reuter.

SCOTTISH STRIKE TO END.

DECISION TO RESUME WORK ON MONDAY.

London, Dec. 5.

Following the decisions of the Delegate Conference of the Miners' Federation, the Scottish miners unanimously decided at their own conference today to resume work on Monday.

The negotiations with the owners will proceed, it is learned, on the basis of the "spreadover" proposals. Reuter and British Wireless.

FURTHER TROUBLE IN BOMBAY.

OVER 200 DEMONSTRATORS IN HOSPITAL.

Bombay, Dec. 5.

No fewer than 229 people have been treated in hospital, of whom 123 were detained, as the result of a collision with the police while demonstrating in defiance of a police ban on the occasion of the end of the seventh month of Gandhi's imprisonment.

Of the 123 detained, 15 are in a serious condition. Reuter.

GERMAN MINISTER RESIGNS.

PARTY OBJECTS TO POLICY OF CABINET.

Berlin, Dec. 5.

TRIAL OF RUSSIAN PROFESSORS.

PROSECUTOR DEMANDS DEATH SENTENCE.

The Public Prosecutor, M. Krylenko, demanded the death sentence on all the eight Professors of Engineering who are on trial on counter-revolutionary charges.—Reuter.

A Chinese living at Wing Lok Street, was seriously injured as the result of a fall down the staircase of a house at Ship Street yesterday. He was conveyed to the Government Civil Hospital in a critical state.

ABOLITION OF DYARCHY.

INDIAN CONFERENCE CERTAINTY.

COMMITTEE VIEW.

London, Dec. 5.

Further progress was made today with the committee work of the Indian Round Table Conference.

The Federal Structure sub-committee completed the work of a provisional classification of the subjects which might be regarded as federal, and then began consideration of the component elements of the federation. Discussion on this was proceeding when the meeting adjourned till Monday when two meetings will be held.

The Provincial Constitution sub-committee had a further meeting. General discussion with particular reference to the abolition of the dyarchy having left no doubt that such a course was favoured, the sub-committee proceeded with consideration of the details.

MEUSE CALAMITY.

MYSTERIOUS POISONING OF ATMOSPHERE.

FIFTY DIE IN A DAY.

Brussels, Dec. 5.

Fifty deaths have occurred in the course of the past twenty-four hours in the Meuse Valley between Liege and Namur.

Cattle are also dying off, the calamity being attributed to a mysterious asphyxiating "fog".

The authorities are investigating the possibility that the fatal fumes have been originating in large dumps of ammunition and other war material in the neighbourhood of the fortress at Liege. Reuter.

deration of the questions that arose if the practicability of abolishing the distinction between the reserved and the transferred subjects were accepted.

The sub-committee particularly addressed itself to questions of what in such case were to be the constitution and composition of the Executive, what are to be the powers of the Governor vis-a-vis his Executive and Legislature and what, if any, provisions are necessary to safeguard the administration of law and order and the rights of the minorities? A useful note was struck during the discussion as to the distinction to be made between statutory provisions regarding essentials and the growth of conventions regarding matters of secondary importance.

When the Burma sub-committee held its first meeting today, the Chairman, Lord Russell, explained that the terms of reference included the principle of separation. He emphasised the desirability of encouraging in every way the prospect of continual cordial relations between India and a separated Burma. After a general discussion on procedure, it was agreed that a statement of the heads of the subjects for discussion should be circulated for the next meeting on Monday.—British Wireless.

ACCIDENT DURING BLASTING.

MAN'S HAND BLOWN OFF BY CHARGE.

The premature explosion of a charge during blasting operations in the Salkung district, New Territories, yesterday, led to a serious casualty, one of the stonebreakers having his hand blown off, while the foreman was also badly lacerated. He was later admitted into hospital in a serious condition.

Two Chinese are in hospital following collision between a bus and a lorry on the Castle Peak Road yesterday, when they received serious injuries to the head and body. Both men, who live in Portland Street, were travelling in the bus, when it collided with a lorry, in circumstances which are not stated.

COLONY'S CREDIT BALANCE.

STILL OVER $10,000,000 IN AUGUST.

POST OFFICE RISE.

Financial statements appearing in the Government Gazette show that the Colony's credit balance at the end of August was still over the ten million dollar mark, the exact figure being $10,007,229.48, as against $10,431,763.61 at the end of July. The shrinkage is largely attributable to heavy increased expenditure, although revenue was also slightly down during the month.

The actual revenue for the month was $2,123,202, compared with $2,270,569 in August last year, the principal decrease being in land sales which yielded only $207,781 as against $456,440 last year. A big increase was shown in Post Office receipts, which brought in $118,029, as compared with $61,479 for August, 1929.

The total revenue for the first eight months of the year was $16,793,003, compared with $16,643,896 in 1929.

Expenditure for August totalled $2,550,735, as against $1,621,169 for the same month last year. There were increases under practically every heading, the biggest being in respect of Public Works. Extraordinary, which advanced from $146,002 to $477,959.

The expenditure from January to August inclusive was $16,448,625, as compared with $13,119,911 for the same period last year.

LIBERAL LEADER DENIES PACT.

WHAT CONSERVATIVE VICTORY WOULD MEAN.

London, Dec. 5.

In view of recent rumours that the Liberal Party had agreed conditionally to support the Government, the speech by Mr. Lloyd George to Liberal candidates today was awaited with interest.

He said there was no pact to announce. He was there to expound policy. He criticised the Labour Government, but said an election might mean a Conservative victory involving protection for a generation. Therefore the Government should be defeated only on an issue vital to the nation.

The Government would need Liberal goodwill and help, and urgent problems must be tackled and electoral reform carried through.

Questioned later, Mr. Lloyd George repeated that there is no pact and no deal.—British Wireless.

THICK FOG IN THE CHANNEL.

SHIPPING AND AVIATION HELD UP.

London, Dec. 5.

Fog in the Channel today seriously interfered with shipping. Boats from Ostend and Calais could not make port, and this evening they were still at anchor. Shipping at Tilbury is at a standstill.

A number of liners are detained at Southampton.

A tender with passengers for the Hamburg-America liner New York, which had anchored off Spithead, could not locate her and had to return to dock. Twelve months incoming air liners could not reach Croydon and had to land passengers at Lympne to complete the journey by train.—British Wireless.

SLIGHT QUAKE IN JAPAN.

FELT IN THREE CITIES THIS MORNING.

Osaka, Dec. 6.

Early this morning a slight earthquake shock was felt at Osaka, Kyoto and Kobe. The tremor had its seismic centre near Osaka, but no damage appears to have been done.—Reuter.

FENG'S OVERTURE TO CHANG.

ASKS INTERVIEW IN TELEGRAM.

NANKING PUZZLED OVER HIS MOVEMENTS.

THE WAR ON "REDS."

Nanking, Dec. 5.
Prior to his departure from Nanking last evening, General Chang Hauch-liang received a telegram from Marshal Feng Yuxiang, former leader of the Northern rebels, suggesting a meeting with the Manchurian ruler at Tin Lung Shan, some fifty miles from the Yenchow railway station along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.

The telegram has caused considerable surprise in Nanking, and political circles are puzzled how Marshal Feng has been able to reach this point in Shantung Province which is under the Nationalist influence.

Nature of Parley.

It is understood that Marshal Feng intends to confer with the Manchurian ruler concerning the disposition of the north-western armies. The Kuomintang commander's eventual departure from China is considered inevitable.

General Chang Hauch-liang's special train passed Panyu early this morning and arrived at Hsuehchow at eight o'clock. At both stations, representatives of the district Government who came to welcome the Manchurian ruler were received by the Secretary of General Chang.

War on Fukien "Reds"

Shanghai, Dec. 5.

Acting in accordance with Nanking instructions, the Fukien Provincial Government is beginning earnest to make war on the Communist hordes in Fukien. Considerable troops movement is taking place in Western Fukien with the arrival of contingents of forces under the former rebel commander, General Lu Seng-ping, whose surrender to Nanking has led to his appointment as commander of the anti-Communist war in Western Fukien.

The followers of the notorious Chu Tak, a "Red" leader, are active in some districts in Western Fukien.

Admiral Yang Shu-chwang, Chairman of the Fukien Provincial Government, has decided to leave here to-morrow for Fukien. He attended the recent Fourth Kuomintang Plenary Session at Nanking.

Sino-Japanese Affairs.

Nanking, Dec. 5.

The Japanese Charge d'Affaires, who is now visiting Nanking, had an interview with Marshal Chang Kai-shek this afternoon, when he conferred with the President at Military Command Headquarters concerning the Nanking demand for the rendition of the Japanese settlement at Hankow and the reorganisation of the Japanese loans.

Railway Expansion.

Peking, Dec. 5.

Following an elaborate programme of expansion, the management of the Peking-Mukden Railway is using the big sum secured by its recent issue of public loans to purchase 40 powerful locomotives and new coaches.

It is estimated that with the arrival of new rolling stock the revenue of this railway can be increased to $50,000,000 annually.

OVER 500 CHINESE DROWNED.

AN OVERLOADED STEAMER FOUNDERS.

Shanghai, Dec. 5.

Hankow telegrams state that over 500 Chinese passengers were drowned when a small steamer plying between Hankow and Huanan districts foundered on Tuesday at a place near the Lo-shan and Sini districts. The cause of the disaster is undetermined to be overloading.

FOR THE POOR OF HONGKONG.

SOCIETY OF ST. VINCENT DE-PAUL.

The annual Bazaar of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which is to be held to-morrow, raises the question: What is this Society which appeals to us so forcibly for support; whence did it come; what is its scope and what work is it doing in our midst?

In the first place, it must be noted that it is not a mere philanthropic society, distributing so much alms to the poor. It is not a Benevolent Society, aiming only at relief of distress, but a Society which has a two-fold aim (the one dovetailing into the other and incapable of being extricated from it): the uplifting of the poor on the one hand—morally and spiritually even more than materially—and the sanctification of its members through visitation of the poor.

The Founder of the Society was a remarkable Frenchman, Frederick Ozanam, born in 1813. After a brilliant career at school he early left his home in Lyons to go to Paris to study law and literature, afterwards becoming a famous lecturer at the Sorbonne.

At the very early age of 17 he founded the Society. It was then that a little band of students—only eight in number—met together in private and asked each other: What are we doing? we talk but what do we do?

And they resolved forthwith to do as well as to argue, and by visiting the poor in their homes, bringing relief to them in personal service, and endeavouring not only to ameliorate their hard lot materially, but to uplift them, morally and spiritually.

They were ignorant as to how to act about their newly-imposed task, but one of their number came to their help, by introducing them to a Sister Rosalie, a Sister of Charity, who taught them how to proceed in their visits to the poor. She belonged to that great institute of charity founded by the celebrated St. Vincent de Paul, who, in the brilliant reign of Louis XIV, used to go about the sordid streets of Paris at night and pick up the poor orphans and children who were often left there abandoned.

The Foundation.

Inspired by her teaching and example, Ozanam and his companions placed the little Society under the name and patronage of the great Saint of Charity.

Kindred spirits were attracted to them. Their influence was irresistible; they spread rapidly and by the time Ozanam died in 1853—literally worn out by his labours, intellectual, literary and charitable—he was at the head of a Society which had spread beyond the confines of France to almost every country of Europe, and was destined to be world-wide.

In Hongkong itself, so far away from the parent stem, it was established as far back as 1863, only 10 years after Ozanam's death. Nor has it with its spread lost sight of its first ideals, but is everywhere faithful to the "Rule" of its founder, framed shortly after its coming into existence.

It is in the best sense of the word a "social" institution, for while it visits the poor wherever there is need, irrespective of class, nationality, or creed, its membership is open to all classes of Catholics alike, no distinction of class being permitted in its conferences.

Of this the example may be quoted of an Irish bank clerk who was fond of relating how in his conference in London the member who sat at their meetings beside him, and who accompanied him in his visits to the poor was the Marquis of Ripon, Minister of the Crown.

Here in Hongkong, too, some of the early and most active members, still well remembered, were Mr. (Continued on Page 15.)

CABINET APPROVE OF LOAN
FOR RELIEF WORKS.Tokyo, Dec. 5.
Japan's unemployed is officially estimated at 400,000, but, unofficially, it is put much higher. It is noteworthy that 300,000 tons of shipping are at present tied up, putting out of employment 5,000
seamen.Despite the Government's "No Loan" policy, the Cabinet has ap-

HOAX ON A MARCHIONESS.

CAR LOADS OF UNWANTED GOODS.

An unknown man, by a series of telephone calls, hoaxed a number of West End business firms recently in sending representatives and goods to the house of the Marchioness of Huntly, in Grosvenor-square.

The door bell rang at 10.30 a.m. Within a few minutes it had rung several times, announcing the arrival of the representatives of a well-known firm of jewellers, a firm of dress designers, a shoe-maker, a beauty specialist and others.

In motor-cars the representatives brought with them jewels, dresses, coats, shoes, creams and lotions.

Not Ordered.

There was dismay among the gathering when they were informed that the Marchioness knew nothing about it; that she had not asked them to call. They returned to their business houses taking the unwanted articles with them.

"It is all too stupid," said the Marchioness to a Press representative. "Two of the firms know me very well, and, of course, they sent along immediately. I cannot think why anyone should do such a thing. These people said that they had been instructed to call by my secretary."

A representative of the dress designers said: "The whole thing was quite evidently done for a 'joke.' A man's voice that spoke to us on the telephone one evening requested that frocks and other goods should be sent to the Marchioness's house this morning."

"This sort of thing may be considered a joke by some people, but it is no joke for business firms. We have to suffer inconvenience and waste of time."

The firm of jewellers also confirmed the fact that it was a man's voice that spoke on the telephone.

ARRESTS IN ITALY.

PROFESSOR LEAPS FROM MOVING TRAIN.

Rome, Nov. 7. It has now come to light that the Fascist authorities have carried out a raid on anti-Fascist elements in Italy and have arrested 20 persons who are alleged to have been organising criminal activities in conjunction with anti-Fascists in Paris against the Italian State and the Fascist regime.

Among those rounded up are several people of the professional classes, including Professor Rensi, of Genoa University, who is now in Genoa gaol.

Signor Bellotti, who was Minister of Commerce in the old Bonomi Cabinet and was arrested after several warnings, has been sent to the gaol.

Signor Ernesto Rossi, Professor of Economic Sciences in the technical institute of Bergamo, another prisoner, while being conveyed by train to Rome under escort, leaped through the window of the train. The train was stopped and after a six hours' hunt the Professor was recaptured.

I understand that none of the above names is connected with the Communist Party, which is practically non-existent in Italy, but all are of the Democratic Republican Group. All 20 arrests were made in Northern Italy, and when the evidence has been completed they will be arraigned before a special sitting of the Defence of the Realm Court.

HOW TO GET RID OF INDIGESTION.

Those who suffer from indigestion, gastritis, acidity, flatulence, dyspepsia, heartburn, etc., will be glad to learn that instant relief can be obtained by taking half a teaspoonful of Bismarck's

Magnesia powder or two or three tablets in a little water immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. This instantly neutralises the acid that causes all the trouble, stops the fermentation, heals and soothes the inflamed stomach lining, and restores painless, normal digestion. Get a package of Bismarck's Magnesia of your chemist to-day; use as directed, and you will soon be telling your friends how you got rid of indigestion.

CINEMA NOTES.

MUSICAL COMEDY FOR THE QUEEN'S.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newest all-talking screen romance, "Lord Byron of Broadway," enhanced by songs, dance and striking Technicolor scenes, will open to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. The picture, which was adapted from the novel by Nell Martin, achieves distinction in introducing to the screen Ethelred Terry, star of Ziegfeld's musical comedy hit, "Rio Rita," and Charles Kaley, well-known Broadway juvenile, recently featured in "Earl Carroll's Vanities."

The picture, a story of the rise of a cafe piano player to vaudeville matinee idol and his disastrous love affairs with five show girls was directed by William Nigh and Harry Beaumont with the dialogue continuity in the joint hands of Willard Mack and Crane Wilbur.

Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, composers of "Singin' in the Rain," "Wedding of the Painted Doll" and other hits, were engaged to write the music and lyrics, while the dance routines were supervised by Sammy Lee, former Ziegfeld dancer.

The supporting cast includes Marion Shilling, featured in "Wise Girls," "Bill Edwards, Gwen Lee, Benny Rubin, Drew Demarest, Rita Flynn and a number of others.

From advance reports, the picture seems towards the musical spectacle type exemplified by "The Hot Chillys" and "Broadway Melody," but has more emphasis on plot and narrative than did the former pictures.

It is stated the film gives every opportunity for display of the vivid personalities of its stage stars as well as serving as the background for an engrossing and amusing tale of Broadway life in its true perspective.

"Safety in Numbers."

"Safety in Numbers" now appearing at the Central Theatre is slightly reminiscent of "Close Harmony" but it is so far superior to that picture of the early days of talking film, a comparison is unfair. In fact, "Safety in Numbers" is far and away superior to any of the screen musical comedies that have ever been produced.

There are all the ingredients of pure, unadorned fun, and the management in its most diverting form. A modern story, with just enough of the spice of sophistication, dialogue which crackles with wit, music which is fresh and different, with lyrics that sparkle with cleverness, setting and an attractive eye with their deft presentation of things up-to-the-minute, and (this will please the ladies particularly) gowns and lingerie that out-Paris Paris.

But above all is "Buddy," "America's Boy Friend," giving the greatest display of his effervescent talents he has ever exhibited on the silver screen. He sings, dances, plays the trombone, plays the piano, sings some more, falls in love with five gorgeous chorines, writes a hit-song for the "Follies," sells it to a big Broadway producer, bawls out Broadway wise guys, gets into a fist fight with a cab driver, loves some more girls, writes some more songs, sings and sings again.

"Let's Go Native."

"Let's Go Native" comes to the Central Theatre on Tuesday next. It is the work of George Marion, Jr., and Percy Heath, the witty gentleman who turned out that scintillating competition for Buddy Rogers—"Safety in Numbers."

There are five very winsome tunes in the show, and these are the very winsome chorines. The names of the songs are "Joe Jazz," "I've Got A Yen For You," "It's So Easy To Be Spring," "Let's Go Native" and "My Mad Moment." The names of the chorines are—well it doesn't matter they are all exceedingly joyous to look upon.

But best of all to recommend it to discerning audiences is the cast list of "Let's Go Native." The stars are Jack Oakie and Jeanette MacDonald. Mr. Oakie was in "The Dimples," "Swanee," "Hit the Deck," "The Social Lion" and "Paramount on Parade." Miss MacDonald was in "The Love Parade," "The Green Pajamas" and in "The Vagabond King" as the princess. In "Let's Go Native" she is a plain American girl, which is even better than the parts she played in the first two pictures. The show, too, Skippy Galloway, Kay Francis, Eugene Pallette, William Austin, James Hall and David Newell.

In connection with the dinner dances of the Hongkong Automobile Association, there will be late morning at 1.15 and 1.30 a.m. and late peak trains will run in conjunction with the service. Time of Peak trains: 12.30, 1.00, 1.45, and 2.00 a.m.

THE U.S. UNEMPLOYED PROBLEM.

Whilst it is obvious to the outside observer that the unemployment situation in the United States is one of considerable gravity, it is a matter of extreme difficulty to ascertain just how many people there are out of work. President Hoover, a few days ago, stated that the number of wholly unemployed persons in the country was accurately determined during the census in April as about 2,400,000, though the Labour Department's index of the larger trades showed some increase since. The latest estimate, which comes from the President of the Labour Federation, puts the figure very much higher. He estimates the number of workless at no less than 4,800,000, and hazards the view that it will exceed 7,000,000 in February if the present rate of increase continues. If there are good grounds for these estimates, the position must be very much worse than is generally imagined, since the prediction visualises an addition to the ranks of the unemployed at the rate of a million per month. Some little time ago, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, speaking in the House of Commons, said he had been informed by a leading U.S. industrial leader that if the American calculations were made on the same basis as the British, the figure would run into no less than 12,000,000. How far that represents the case, it is not easy to say, but it must be borne in mind that the British statistics take account of people partially unemployed as well as those who are wholly idle.

Whatever the actual figures may be in the United States, we do know that the position has become sufficiently serious for the President to appoint a committee to consider schemes to devise some method of helping those who find themselves without jobs. One of the proposals which has been put forward, we notice, is designed to interpret a nationwide programme in terms of individual localities. To begin with, it is suggested that the Federal Government should appropriate the huge sum of a billion dollars for unemployment relief. There is nothing of the "dole" system in this scheme, which suggests that the money be allotted to different cities in proportion to their population, with a proviso that each city getting an allotment would supply an equal sum, the total to be spent at once for public improvements. By this method, it is contended, in the nation as a whole fully two million men would be given work within eight months. The scheme may have its defects, but it is being put forward as one that dissects a large-scale relief programme and shows how it can be interpreted in terms of dollars and cents for each community. This is only one of the plans which have been put forward, but it is one which has, according to the American press, been receiving considerable attention.

On the general question of the causes of unemployment, not only in the United States and Britain, but in all countries affected, it is now recognised that the evil springs from factors which are common to practically the whole world. For that reason, it is hard to see what individual nations can do to get their workers back into harness. There will need to be a big general revival of trade before any real relief can be expected, and at the moment the prospects of this are not particularly bright. Measures for the alleviation of the plight of all these idle workers must obviously be taken, but the mere relief of distress is unfortunately not sufficient. The whole problem bristles with difficulties, and it is now the task of Governments almost everywhere to face these in order to prevent even worse developments.

The Labour Manifesto and Whitechapel.

Extraordinary as the suggestion sounds, coming from such militant apostles of democracy as the Labour Party, its extreme wing moreover, the Prime Minister could do worse than to treat the economic situation as a national emergency and set up a Supreme Council to tackle it with an energy equal to that which marked the War Council's prosecution of the 1914-18 campaign. The Whitechapel by-election was meaningless if it did not express the growing demand of the country for exceptional measures in the present crisis, if it did not invite the Government to take its courage in both hands. The Liberal candidate nearly doubled the Liberal poll in the constituency at the General Election. The proposals submitted to the Government by Mr. Lloyd George undoubtedly provide the explanation. An expert, doubtless, could pick them full of holes. The huge loan recommended might be inexpedient at a time when Mr. Snowden is contemplating a colossal war loan conversion operation at an early opportunity. Nevertheless, Mr. George's schemes have the great merit of boldness, and the country is tired of economic theory, tired of watching the figures of unemployed mounting weekly, almost tired of waiting for the Government to do something in a big way to save itself from heavy defeat when it seeks the country's verdict on its works. We realise all the difficulties. We are aware that Sir Oswald Mosley, the probable author of the Labour manifesto, broke with the Government on the same issue. The Government's answer to its critics hitherto has been that the Mosley programme and the Liberal programme provide mere palliatives at enormous cost. There is, however, a great deal to be said for the other side. Britain has reached a pass where she must organise for a return of prosperity as she organised for victory. Drastic steps are necessary, perhaps not so drastic as those proposed by the Labour Left Wing; but breaking away from tradition to an extent sufficient to give confidence both to employers and would-be employed. Even palliatives cannot be scorned. Indeed, it may be argued that the Government will never get down to the seat of the trouble until the outward and visible signs become less aggravated. A cure demands a major operation; but the patient's vitality is at a low ebb, and needs nourishment and new strength before it can be performed.

R. J. CRUIKSHANK on
PAMPERED PETS
OF NEW YORK.

GILBERT the Goldfish is one of the most valued residents of New York. I suppose there is no other great city which keeps so many pets in bowls and tanks, that being an effect of its unmatched congestion. The vast section of the population which lives in apartments (we call them flats in London) finds it much more convenient to cherish fish than dogs or cats. You see, there is room to swing Gilbert in even the tiniest apartment, and he never barks, nor bites the postman, nor perches on the roof at midnight to outstream the radio. Where so many people are living on top of one another, it is necessary to have both muted children and dumb pets. If the murder rate is to be kept within decent limits.

The Goldfish Test for Suitors. "Love me, love my goldfish," says Miss Manhattan, presenting Gilbert or Gilberte (as the sex may be) to her suitor, and there is a general belief that there must be something good in a man if the family goldfish taken to him at first sight. The grave directors of the Natural History Museum recently gave their blessing to this cult, holding an exhibition of domestic fish, and I found the crowd it drew had the same rapt, pet-worshipping look of those enthusiasts who attend the Crystal Palace Cat Show. Beautiful fish, many of them were; exotic creatures from the tropics, painted in the hues of sunset, trailing streamers of rainbow tissue—and all of them guaranteed not to add to the noise nuisance afflicting this city.

Myriads of goldfish are imported here from Japan, and it was comical to note during the tariff debates the eloquent plea made for a high duty on them, on the ground that they had a lower standard of living than the American-born goldfish. My friend, Gilbert, is a patriotic lad or he was born in a shop in Sixth Avenue, and he nearly burst his gills with indignation when he heard about this invasion of cheap Japanese labour. "Make the forger pay," is now the watchword of every hundred per cent. American goldfish.

Imagine what a dog's life is like in a city of skyscrapers, amid streets crammed with motors! A large dog is about as convenient as an elephant in a tiny Manhattan apartment, therefore miniature breeds have become popular. Tiny little terriers, and those tiny hairless dogs from Mexico fit as neatly into this urban life as peas in a pod. Portly New Yorkers on Parade.

In a city of whirling wheels, the dog who walks alone soon comes to a sad end, so every Mick and Peter trots out on a lead. There are two things the average male in New York does without embarrassment, piloting a perambulator and walking a little dog on a lead. In the gorgeous pageant of New York streets, there are no figures that please me more than those of portly and purple-faced old gentlemen escorting microscopic pets. Picture a Bank President, with the build of Falstaff, preserving his dignity as he keeps in step along Fifth Avenue with Mercedes from Mexico, a dainty midget who looks a light, a puff of wind would blow her away.

I once read a report from some animal society that there were one million and a half cats in New York of which half a million were strays. Since then I have been haunted by the fate of these unhappy vagrants, drinking through alleys, cowering in basements, marauders of wharves and waste grounds. There are a great many human beings the world over who seem to have precious little conscience about abandoning their pets.

Aristocrats and Tramps in the Cat World. Everybody says that more cats are kept in Greenwich Village, the Bohemian Quarter of the city, than in any other part of New York. Perhaps it takes an artist to appreciate the grace and beauty of the eling as well as the feline. I have heard that some poets, musicians and painters find inspiration in their pet cats; possibly one could guess as much from their work. There are two kinds of cats in Greenwich Village, the aristocrats, who are the pampered darlings of the studios, and the tramps, who live on charity. The aristocrats are fine Persians and Angoras, hristened with flashing classical names, such as Eros and Semiramis, and Hellogalalus—or even Robinson. As for caged pets, I find there has been a decline in their popularity into the late unpleasantness over arrot fever. During that scare a number of persons, with that ready cruelty which many of us show to he things dependent on us, drove heir parrots out of the window, and for a long time afterwards heir incredible colours gleamed against the foliage of Central Park. It may be that I don't move in the right circles, but I have met but few canaries in New York, except in hotel lounges, where they sing heir hearts out trying to entertain at Rotarians from Kansas City. The Vain Love of a Love Bird. All the world loves a love bird. At least that is the impression one gets from seeing the fuss made over these charming sentimentalists in the stores. Somebody was telling me the other day that if the mate of a love bird dies it may be reconciled to life by a mirror placed in its cage. Apparently its own reflection is a compensation for the loss of the beloved. I hope that isn't true for no cynic has ever invented anything more devastating about the nature of love.

"DOUGHBOY PULLMAN."

Presented to U.S. by France.

The towered skyline of Manhattan makes an incongruous setting for the little French box car—a design all too familiar to every ex-doughboy—as it was ferried across the Hudson River with French delegates to the Fidae congress. The car was presented to the Forty and Eight society of American war veterans.

"40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux." will not squeak quite so much as in those days when it was in action. Box car No. M23987 will be presented to the Forty and Eight Society of Veterans in the United States, which took its name from the "40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux." This simple printing on the typical French box car never seemed at all funny to the French, but it greatly amused the American doughboy upon his arrival in France. Hence the society and its name.

A Mobile Memorial. During the convention of the American Legion in Paris in 1927, the Forty and Eight Society was very conspicuous and French newspapers tried their best to inform their readers, in a friendly way, of this "quaint American humour." The French veterans, who ten years before had begun to understand their American comrades, accepted the society wholeheartedly. And that's why the Fidae sent the box car back to the Forty and Eight.

"This car is a symbol of American sacrifices in the war," said M. Javary, director of the Chemins de Fer du Nord when the car was turned over to the delegates. "May it stand for succeeding generations of Americans as a humble but expressive monument to the spirit of the American armies who fought on French soil."

The old "buddy" has been done up in full dress uniform. It has a fresh coat of grey paint. Its joints have been oiled so that it

ANCIENT CITY OF VERULAM.

Revelations of Early English Life.

In all the romantic story of modern archaeology nothing more fascinating has occurred than the revelation that a few feet beneath a hay-field and trees outside the old English city of St. Albans there lie buried the remains of the Roman city of Verulam which was the metropolis of England before Jesus of Nazareth was born and beside which Londinium—original of the present London—was a mere trading village.

In fact, if the hopes already raised by archaeological finds are realized, Verulam may well prove to be to England what Pompeii and Herculaneum are to Italy—a marvellous preservation of the everyday life of the Roman masters of the then known world. Verulam may even exceed them in interest. After all, Pompeii and Herculaneum were only Roman seaside towns preserved for posterity by being buried in a rain of ashes from the neighbouring volcano of Vesuvius. But Verulam was more than a Roman town. Long before the Romans came to England on conquest bent, there is evidence that Verulam was the site of a native British town and, possibly, the biggest in all the island.

Ancient Roman Walls.

It had long been known by the people of St. Albans that just outside the town there had been a Roman city. The ancient Roman city walls are exposed for many hundreds of feet. Eighty-three years ago the remains of a Roman theatre, the only one in Great Britain, were exposed and, nearly, the remains of a Roman forum. Not long ago it was decided to have the site excavated to see whether further traces of the old city could be discovered.

This task was entrusted to Dr. R. E. Mortimer Wheeler, keeper and secretary of the London Museum, and his wife, both of whom are well known British archaeologists. They had not gone far before they began to make sensational discoveries—the remains of a great Roman gateway, Roman villas, a Roman wine cellar and a Roman cemetery, which was always placed outside the city walls for hygienic reasons.

Work Postponed.

Work in excavating has now been postponed until next year on account of the setting in of the rain season, but points of vast archaeological and historical importance are expected to be cleared up.

FIRST—In 54 B. C., Julius Caesar crossed the Thames river in pursuit of Cassivellaunus, king of the native tribe of Catuvellauni, who was overlord of southeastern Britain. His stronghold is supposed to have been where Verulam has now been found. In this native British metropolis was located the first mint ever known in British history. The native Britons had learned about coining money from their contacts with people from Roman-ruled Europe and imitated them. Caesar did not finish the conquest of England. This was only accomplished in the year 43 A.D. under the Emperor Claudius. And eight years later the Romans conferred upon Verulam the title of "municipium," which in Gaul was a title given only to pre-Roman cities which had proved themselves worthy of Roman honor by reason of their size and importance. This proves that even after Caesar departed and before Claudius came, Verulam maintained its commanding position. The big point, therefore, is that here if anywhere the excavators hope to find the pre-Roman British stronghold and its native civilization—something about which very little is known.

SECOND—In the year A. D. 61, while the main Roman armies were to the north fighting the native tribes, the minor officials left in the south so aroused the Britons by their tyranny that the Iceni under their Queen Boudicca (or more correctly spelled now, Boudica) arose in rebellion. They destroyed the towns of Colchester, London and Verulam. Vestiges of that ancient destruction, it is hoped, will be uncovered.

THIRD—Verulam was rebuilt upon an even bigger scale by the Romans, being made a regular Roman walled city and here they remained for 350 years. There is, therefore, the chance that the whole of Roman civilization in Britain for 350 years may be uncovered.

FOURTH—When the Romans finally abandoned Britain, there was a wild swirl of petty wars between native tribes. The fifth century after Christ, so far as Britain is concerned, remains a mystery. It is known that England was harried by Picts and Scots and Anglo-Saxon and Irish pirates in the fourth century. Notwithstanding, Verulam seems to have continued a semi-peaceful existence, because a contemporary life of St. Germanus, a Gaulish bishop, says he came to Verulam in 429 for the purpose of putting down a native Christian heresy. This would imply that Verulam was not at war. Since the inhabitants had time and leisure to quarrel among themselves about religion. In Verulam, therefore, if anywhere, it is hoped to discover something about British urban life in the fifth century, the story of which is at present a blank page.

Discovered Ancient Baths. One of the first discoveries Dr. Wheeler made this past summer was the foundation of a great gateway in the walls through which ran the main Roman road from London to Verulam. There was also uncovered the remains of what was probably an elegant Roman villa of some higher official. Tessellated pavements of the floor of the villa were discovered. These were made of red pottery squares measuring about an inch each way. In what was another room was discovered a pavement of a Greek key pattern. In still another house remains of a Roman bath system were uncovered. The Roman baths were of our present Turkish bath type and were heated from furnaces which supplied hot air to basements beneath the floors and to flue pipes which carried the hot air to the upstairs rooms and kept them comfortable in bad weather. In fact, just enough has been found in six weeks work to justify the hope that next summer complete pages of ancient history will be laid bare.

THE RECENT BRAZILIAN REVOLT.

Scenes of vengeful rioting in the capital city of Rio de Janeiro followed the spectacular coup d'etat which brought about the swift overthrow of the Brazilian government. Mobs surged through the Plaza Marechal Floriano, shown lower left, and other main thoroughfares as news of the success of the revolution was broadcast through the city; note, in the background, the dome of Monroe Palace, the Brazilian Senate Building, seized by a revolutionary committee. Lower right is Dr. Washington Luis, the deposed president, who yielded to arrest after hours of defying the rebels from the sanctuary of his executive mansion, the Palacio Guanabara, pictured at the top.

Styles That Make the Most Of Smartness and Sweetness

I. a one-sided train is a feature of this blue and silver evening gown which Cybor has designed.

II. for sports Chantal is suggesting this reddish brown tweed with matching jacket.

III. there is chic to the cape which Redfern attaches to this gray and black morning ensemble for street, travel or town wear.

By JULIA

YOU can be anything you want to be this winter, so far as clothes are concerned. But a good motto might be: "Be sweet, if possible. Otherwise, be smart!"

The world is yours, if you are in the lucky class that can look sweet and very, very feminine.

Of course if you are nice and young, this should not be hard. The cut of your clothes, the little extras you wear with them, the colors and materials all are designed to aid and abet this vague for sweetness.

What you wear should be determined by your type. If you are a decorative bit of humanity, you can afford to have simple things, of rich beauty and classic line.

If you admit to yourself that you are all right, albeit a speck plain, you can get clothes with a few little touches that supply ornamentation that you may lack.

Black is an excellent bet for you. If you are young, it is a perfect foil for smooth skin and sparkling eyes. If you are not so young, it is one of the best bets for sophisticated chic. You can wear white near your face, or some flattering soft color. And it has that style that few colors possess.

I. WHATEVER your type, if you are a young person, you will want at least one rich evening gown. Do not have a sophisticated brocaded metal cloth. They are too old for you. Look, instead, at some of the exquisitely dainty lame embroidered mousselines. They have such softness, are so pretty and lend themselves to lines that suggest movement, an excellent model for youth.

A gorgeous blue and silver lame embroidered mousseline, on a pure white background, is youth personified, and sweetness to boot. It is fitted, has an asymmetrical volant rippling from one shoulder and ending in a one-sided train. Nobody but a young person should wear it. For it takes a slender figure plus youth to carry the original model.

II. FOR sports, don't wear just anything. Dress up. Chantal makes an outfit just for you, if you are in this category. It is a diagonal weave reddish brown tweed skirt, with a smart little short blouse of matching suede, made with a hem of the skirt's material and a lot of fine seaming and lacing around the neck to make it very feminine. It has a scarf of the suede, for further warmth, and a felt hat banded in suede, the shade of the outfit. Gloves of a light shade help set it off.

(Copyright, 1930, by EveryWeek Magazine—Printed in U. S. A.)

III. FOR the street, for travel, for town wear of any kind mornings, a Redfern ensemble in a fancy weave wool fabric, in gray and black, is novel and smart.

It has an unusual cape that is closed in front and swings into two scarfs in the back. A heavy hem of lynx keeps it in place. With the cape removed, the dress is a practical little thing, chic as they make them, and youthful looking. It has fine seaming, ending both front and back in double box pleats that give the skirt fullness. A turban of the wool has a feather fancy at one side of the back.

IV. A BLACK gown, designed to enhance that sweetness you want heightened, is made of soft black velvet, with lace trim.

This gown, made for formal afternoon teas, dances or receptions, is just as good for informal dinner wear. It is ankle length all around, has shirring through the waistline to make it fit the body, and a novel modern leg of mutton sleeve with lace medallions of ecru guipure lace.

The round yoke of the same lace is ultra-girlish and modest-looking. So is the full, long skirt. With such a demure gown, no jewels should be worn, unless pearls please you, or one of the new little jeweled crosses, worn on a fragile chain.

V. IF you are a little slip of a young person, with lots of dash, you will find this afternoon costume most suitable.

It is a little tiered skirt and bolero jacket outfit of a very soft faille, in a brocaded small all-over pattern. It is black, made with silver and white leaves embroidered around the waistline of the skirt that fits like a princess dress to the top of a belt. The silver and white leaves take the place of a belt, in a very admirably decorative manner.

A little tuck-in blouse of white silk has a round yoke effect of the silver and white embroidered leaves. The cuffs that turn back over the bolero's sleeves have the same embroidery.

Worn with this is a necklace of silver and pearl beads. The little white hat, made of feathers, has a silver bow on one side and the other side is cut out, to expose your shining hair. This costume is very good under a fur coat, a practical costume if you are still in school. But it becomes any really girlish girl.

IV. Martial and Armand enhance sweetness by this ankle length, soft black velvet, lace trimmed gown.

V. faille, brocaded in a pattern of small silver and white leaves is presented by Louiseboulanger in this smart autumn suit.

CURRENT COMMENT

Dinner Dance.
Members of the Hongkong Automobile Association who have not yet made table reservations for the Association's Annual Dinner Dance on December 12th, are requested to do so as soon as possible. This may be done at either the Hongkong or Peninsula Hotel.

Upper Garden Road.
The work of widening the Upper Garden Road is practically completed now, and a very great improvement has been effected. Good progress is also being made with continuation along the May Road, and it should not be long before a considerable portion is opened to motor traffic.

Another Accident.
Since our plea for instruction to school children on the subject of "Safety First" instructions when crossing traffic routes, another fatality has been recorded, a thirteen year old student being killed in the vicinity of Yau-mati. These sad affairs will always be recorded from time to time, but surely intelligent instruction would tend to lessen such unfortunate happenings.

Why Not a Light?
The turning from Garden Road into Cable Road, on the corner of Government House grounds, still remains poorly lighted, and one's sympathy goes out to the constable on duty. The corner is a dangerous one, and what is more, is constantly under the eye of leading Government Officials. Perhaps it is too small a matter to be considered. Although it cannot be denied that the existing state of affairs does call for an early remedy.

Seymour Road.
The setting back of the lamp standard on the side of Seymour Road has removed a dangerous obstacle, and motorists using that thoroughfare will doubtless appreciate the improvement.

DIESEL ENGINED LAUNCH FOR AMOY.

The trials took place recently of the M.B. "Yong Tai Shan" built by Messrs. A. King to the order of the A.P.C.

This boat, of which a photo appears above, has been designed to meet the heavy local conditions of Amoy where heavy weather is often encountered, her hull and timbers being of specially massive construction.

The leading dimensions are as follows:

Length R.P.	49'0"
Length overall	51'8"
Moulded Beam	12'0"
Moulded Depth	6'0"
Draft in sea water	3'0"
Registered Tonnage	9.85
Gross Tonnage	21.89

The boat is built entirely of Yucal and Teakwood with an ordinary launch type stern and sampan type bow. A large cabin is provided aft, the substantial raised wheelhouse being placed forward. A hand capstan is mounted on the foredeck for anchor and warping purposes.

The motive power consists of Gardner 36 H.P. Semi Diesel Crude Oil Engine running at 450 r.p.m. Gardner engines are now so well known in Hongkong that a detailed description of the power unit is unnecessary. Suffice it to say that the engine is direct reversing and works on the two stroke principle.

On trial the "Yong Tai Shan" attained a mean speed over the measured distance of 8.21 knots and the designers are to be congratulated on this result. Later the boat made a non-stop run to Amoy covering the 300 odd miles in 36 hours at an average speed of 7.91 knots, a highly satisfactory performance considering the size of the boat and engine.

This is the second Gardner engine boat built by the A.P.C. for the China Coast and it will be recalled that about a year ago the "Petreux I," built by the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co., made a non-stop run to Poochow, in this case the Power Unit consisted of a twin set of 48 H.P. Gardner Semi Diesel Engines.

We understand that at present day prices the fuel costs of a boat of the "Yong Tai Shan" type work out at approximately 50 cents an hour on full load showing an immense saving over a steam driven boat of similar power, which in addition to running time consumes fuel all the time she is standing by.

During the trials Representatives of the A.P.C. Messrs. A. King, the builders, and Messrs. Dodwell and Co., Ltd., who supplied the engine, were present.

MORE FORDS.

Registrations in America.

Although the registration of new automobiles in the United States up to June 1 of this year decreased 21.7 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of last year, the listing of new Ford passenger cars increased 3.1 per cent. Registrations, which reflect actual deliveries to customers, show 571,801 Fords, exclusive of trucks and commercial cars. This is 17,248 more than were registered last year.

This rather remarkable showing, coupled with the fact that 41.1 per cent. of the cars registered—two out of every five—were Fords is indicative of the extent to which the Ford has regained its position of leadership in the automobile business.

Three years ago Ford production was entirely suspended for nearly a year while plants were being retooled for the production of the Model A. What has happened since is reflected in the sales and registration figures. The new Ford not only became immediately popular among former Ford owners, but it found its place in the garages of the well-to-do. The "diver" about which so many jokes had been told, was a thing of the past and in its stead was an entirely new automobile.

In pointing out the need for uniform traffic laws throughout the country, the national conference on street and highway safety in Washington has estimated that a

Besides this, the conference declared, the motorist submits himself to accident, injury or possible death. The conference drew up a model municipal traffic ordinance in 1928, in which a list of model laws was given that could eliminate the present condition of various systems in different cities.

LONDON'S MOTOR EXHIBITION.

Part II. (Concluded).

[Special Report to the Hongkong Telegraph by R.A.C.]

It was a very happy inspiration on the part of the organisers to include in this year's exhibition a collection of over 20 veteran cars, representative of the period 1895-1913. These ancestors of the modern vehicle serve to demonstrate in the most striking manner the phenomenal advance made in automobile engineering in the past 35 years. Of outstanding interest, this section has been crowded with visitors, who have seized the opportunity of examining at close quarters such historical machines as the original Land Rover of 1895, the first Royal Daimler of 1899, 6 h.p., 2-cylinder, built for King Edward, or, again, the Roll-Royce "Silver Ghost" of 1907, which firmly established the fortunes of the famous Derby works.

With "Value for Money" so generally exemplified in the car for 1931, it is instructive to compare the 12 h.p. 4-cylinder Sunbeam of 1905 with its most recent edition. To-day, one of the 1,100 16 h.p. models has a 4-cylinder, 16 h.p. engine and Lockheed hydraulic braking and sells complete with saloon body, for under £600. Yet only 9 years ago, the 16 h.p. then a 4-cylinder, cost considerably more than double this figure, and this is but a single illustration of what has happened during the past decade.

Progress in Medium Sixes.

It has been truly said that 1930, the year of "transmission years," for the 4-speed gearbox with silent third has been very generally adopted. Reference, too, has been made already to the self-changing gear. The Armstrong Siddeley program now realises the makers' dream of 3 years ago, when they first introduced the self-changing gear as an extra on their most expensive cars. In the meanwhile, it has proved so successful that it is now available on all models from 12 h.p. to 30 h.p. Any gear can be pre-selected, by moving a finger and thumb lever, working on a dial above the steering wheel, the change being actually effected when the clutch pedal is fully depressed and released.

On the new short 15 h.p. model a 3-speed is standardised. Like the other 16 h.p., it has the well-known sloping "V" radiator, other features including a lower frame with "Silentbloc" bushes and improved steering.

In introducing the new 11.8 h.p. 6-cylinder Scorpion, the Triumph Co. has made a notable addition to a class that appears to have a bright future and, at present, is the preserve of British manufacturers. At a price of £227 odd, the refinements of 6-cylinder motoring are now made possible to a public, to whom previously they were unattainable. While there is ample accommodation for four grown-ups, the car has not been over-bodied at the expense of performance; on the contrary, it is said that on top a maximum in the region of 70 m.p.h. is obtainable.

Quality Fours.

A thoroughly sound 4-cylinder which now embodies modifications and improvements resulting from 5 years' use in many countries of the world, the Hillman Fourteen is a good example of modern completeness in equipment. The engine capacity is just under 2 litres, a 4-speed gearbox is fitted and the track is 4 ft. 3 in. A point of importance to Overseas owners is the very complete system of service under the control of Routes Ltd., the exporting firm.

In essentials, the 12 10 h.p. Lea-Francis remains unaltered for 1931 but various detail improvements have been made. Safety glass, chromium plating and improved body-work and finish are among the new features, while the 2- and 4-seater models, the petrol tank is now fitted at the rear of the chassis and holds 10 gallons.

Lea-Francis cars have added to their long list of successes in speed and hill-climbing events during the past season by putting up the record lap for the course in the 1,500 c.c. class in the Irish Grand Prix, winning the 1,500 c.c. sports car section at Shelsley Walsh and exceeding 67 m.p.h. for 24 hrs. In the Junior Car Club's "Double-Twelve."

The Essentially British "Nine".

Originally introduced at the 1926 Olympia Show and pioneer of the silent third of 4-speed gear-box, the Riley Nine embodies many improvements in its latest form.

Stainless steel is used for the external bright parts, a new and more imposing radiator has been adopted and the chassis lubrication nipples are grouped in batches at convenient points. In this way the unpleasantness of greasing the car is removed, and yet there is no risk of a point failing to receive its due share of lubricant—a possibility not altogether absent from some of the central or single-shot systems. Fuel tanks are now mounted at the rear, supply being by vacuum.

The Standard Co. did very well last year with their Nine and it continues as the mainstay of their new programme. To emphasize the fact, however, that it really does provide comfortable seating accommodation for four large people, it is now known as the "Big Nine." Incidentally, the track has been increased by 3 in., resulting in greater stability. A somewhat higher radiator of new type with a large low filler cap has greatly improved the front appearance of this model and, with the latest body styles, the general effect is particularly graceful.

One of the very few newcomers since the last Exhibition, the A.J. S. Nine, from the well known Wolverhampton factory, has obviously been designed with a view to refinement and endurance; in the words of its manufacturers, it has been built to an idea—not to a price. As a result, it will undoubtedly find favour with those who want a high class, low taxed car with a performance expected usually from vehicles of higher power and cost. The engine has a cubic capacity of 1,018 c.c. and is stated to give as much as 17 h.p. at 2,000 and 24 h.p. at 3,000 r.p.m. A speed range of 5-55 m.p.h. is obtainable on top gear and petrol consumption works out at over 45 m.p.g.

A Striking Development.

Quite one of the most important developments for 1931 is the introduction of a 4-speed gearbox on all Singer models, including the Junior, of 8 h.p. This is the first really low priced car to possess this improvement and it will be most instructive to learn in due course the effect it has on performance in the hands of a competent driver. The whole present tendency is towards the use of 4 speeds and the improvement in gear-change methods should ensure their employment to the best advantage.

MAKES ARTIFICIAL RUBBER.

Automobile tyres of the future may be made from artificial rubber. Experiments conducted by Dr. W. H. Smith of the U.S. Bureau of Standards, prove practical for commercial use. Dr. Smith is shown here in his Washington, D.C., laboratory with the apparatus he used to produce an artificial rubber that is also as transparent as plate glass.

BUSES V. TRAINS.

Railway Companies

Using More in England.

London, Oct. 28.

Bus transportation has proven so advantageous throughout England that buses have already replaced trains in several sections.

Motor-buses have just been substituted for trains on the London and North-Eastern Railway system in Yorkshire and Northumberland, and no fewer than 26 railway stations and stops have been removed from the line.

It is expected that the use of buses will speed up delivery of freight and mail between the 26 stations by taking passenger traffic off the railroad, and yet give adequate service to passengers. It will also speed up fast passenger service between York and Scarborough, the two stations on either end of the line.

Other railway companies have no intention of supplanting their trains with buses this year, but if the L. and N. E.'s experiment proves successful, it is expected they will follow its example.

NEWS FROM DETROIT.

There is a more buoyant feeling in Detroit at the present time due to the fact that more than 120,000 men have returned to work in the various factories. The roster of employees and the production schedules vary from 20 to 50 per cent. below the figures of this time a year ago. A considerable number of the plants will work on a four or five day a week basis and the practice of "staggering" employment to give as much work as possible to every one will be continued.

There has been a dropping off in the automobile parts industry in the last two or three weeks. Manufacturers hold this is only temporary and that improvement is already on the way. Parts makers are looking forward to an exceptionally good business during the Fall months. This usually follows when sales of new motor cars fall off for a year. They point out that motorists usually put their cars in first-class shape for Winter driving and this always results in an increase in the parts business.

word "Pass" and so disposes of any doubt of the driver's intentions.

One of the most disagreeable tasks in the maintenance of a car is chassis lubrication, so that the inclusion of a thoroughly proved one-shot system in a car's equipment is a very decided asset to both salesman and purchaser.

There are a number of features in the Luvax-Bijur system which make it particularly interesting. In the first place it is built into the chassis and no loose flexible tubes are used; there are no moving parts in the pipe line and one simple operation from the driving seat oils every bearing on the chassis. The oil so delivered is a measured specified quantity and does not vary with the outside temperature. Regular lubrication means lower maintenance costs and with a trouble-free system of this kind there is no excuse for neglect.

patent driver. The whole present tendency is towards the use of 4 speeds and the improvement in gear-change methods should ensure their employment to the best advantage.

Another sound feature about this model is the placing of the petrol tank at the rear, where it is in the safest position and, at the same time, helps the weight distribution.

Unorthodox but sound.

Quite unconventional in design but backed by sound common sense the latest Trojan is a most interesting development of the original vehicle brought out about 12 years ago to provide trouble-free transport in its most economical form.

The 4-cylinder 2-stroke engine of 1,488 c.c. is placed at the rear, in what is more normally the luggage boot; in that position, it is very accessible, no fumes or smell can enter the body and liability to skid is practically non-existent. The gearbox is a 3-speed and reverse spicely unit, which acts by applying a friction band to one of a series of drums; changes can be made in the orthodox manner or, on the other hand, the clutch need not be operated at all. It is thus, extremely simple to drive. There are only 7 moving parts in the Trojan engine which is very economical to run, 35-40 m.p.g. being the consumption figure.

With all the mechanism at the rear, the inside of the body is very roomy, seating five, and a large amount of luggage can be stored in front as the passenger's seat can be slid in front under the bonnet. It may be noted that the track is 4 ft. 8 in. and clearance 8½ in., but the latter may be increased to 11 in.

Aids To Safety and Comfort.

A visit to the Accessory section in the Show has been made much pleasanter this year, thanks to the extensions to the great building, now in use for the first time. There are always very useful ideas to be gleaned from the stands in the gallery where there are shown a multitude of exhibits for making motoring still easier and safer.

In the extensive range of electrical equipment shown by Joseph Lucas Ltd. there is a very ingenious rear lamp which carries out a variety of functions. In addition to illuminating the number plate and showing the usual tail light, it also gives a red danger signal when the foot brake is applied. That is not all, however, for in addition it incorporates a white light which will give a rearward beam when reversing the car, and anyone who has tried to reverse in a narrow country lane at night or back into an unlighted garage will appreciate such a fitting.

With the ever increasing traffic congestion, more and more attention is being paid to devices for indicating direction. Even in these days, it is not by any means overy car from which it is a simple matter for the driver to signal his intentions with his arm, while at night such signals are often difficult to see. It may be, therefore, that before long the fitting of some form of direction indicator will be made compulsory. The "Pass Light," shown by Shaw & Kilburn, appears to be a useful fitting in this class; it consists of a small signalling arm, which when operated by a switch under the driver's control, shows the

MODERN AMERICAN HIGHWAYS.

Chimney Rock, at the southern edge of the Blue Ridge Mountains near Asheville, N.C., offers one of the beautiful views encountered along Highway 25. Just as beautiful is the trip along either of the other two routes to the south—Highways 1 and 41, as shown by the map.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 12. The annual trek to the southland is beginning.

Motorists who are lucky enough for a trip to warmer climes when the first blasts of winter appear in the north are piling up the old bus, laughing in the face of their arch enemy, the furnace, stumping milk and paper deliveries and following the birds to North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Three routes offer themselves to motorists for the trip out of the land of snow and cold into the sunny south. One leads from as far north as Fort Kent, Me., to Miami, Fla. Another runs from Detroit to Florida, and the third from Chicago to Florida.

The first highway is the recently completed U.S. Highway No. 1, which, after nearly 30 years of construction, now stretches its broad surface, 99 per cent paved, for a distance of 2,452 miles from Maine to Florida.

Along its route motorists pass through almost every type of climate the United States has to offer. The road goes through historic New England and many of the greatest cities in America. It is the first highway to be named by the government, and easy to follow all the way.

To Key West and Beyond!

Starting at Fort Kent, Me., the highway runs in a direct line south through Bangor and Portland, Me.; Boston, Mass.; New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D.C.; Richmond, Petersburg and South Hill, Va.; Raleigh, N.C.; Camden, Columbia and Aiken, S.C.; Augusta and Waycross, Ga., and into Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, Palm Beach, Miami and Key West, Fla.

At Key West it is possible to take the automobile on board a boat for a trip to Cuba and its new $100,000,000 Cuban Central Highway.

Some of the off-the-beaten-path beauty spots along this route to the south are Aiken, S.C., and Augusta, Ga. The former is the centre of the country's winter polo and the home of aristocracy. The latter is a sportsman's city in which some of the leading golfers and tennis players congregate in winter to engage in championship matches.

From Augusta, America's horde of southbound motorists can follow route 1 to Jacksonville, thence south along a 500-mile palm-fringed coastal route down the Florida seaboard to its winter resorts.

Tourists' accommodations along this entire road are excellent.

-ranging in price to suit every pocketbook.

From Lakes to Gulf.

The second route from the north to the south's resort states is U.S. Highway 25. This cuts through the central states into Florida. South along Lake Erie it enters Toledo and from there runs directly south to Cincinnati. Here it crosses the Ohio river into Kentucky and at Lexington, centre of blue grass and race horses, the climate commences to get warmer. Then southeast into Knoxville, Tenn., and Asheville, N.C., a beautiful spot in the lower edge of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

From Asheville, U.S. 25 runs due south into Augusta, where it joins U.S. Highway 1, the eastern route into Florida.

The third route south, out of Chicago, enters Florida from the west. It is U.S. Highway 41, and is a fine type of road fully paved and running through some of the most picturesque parts of the country. It is reached by going from Chicago to Hammond, Ind., outside of which 41 starts.

Through Five States.

Due south through the entire state of Indiana the route travels, passing the level farm lands of the Hoosier state, crossing over the Ohio river at Evansville into Kentucky, and then into Tennessee. At Clarksville, Tenn., the route turns southeast. A short trip brings the Florida-bound tourist into the thriving city of Nashville and still farther south into Chattanooga.

Here the road enters Georgia, near Dalton, and continues southeast into Atlanta, one of the largest cities of the south. Through the cotton fields the tourist goes, finally entering Florida at Jasper.

At Lake City, a short distance from Jasper, it is possible to take U.S. Highway 90 due east into Jacksonville and continue the trip south on U.S. Highway 1. But to complete the circle, 41 continues south from Lake City to Tampa, St. Petersburg, Ft. Myers and around through the Seminole Indian reservation to Miami.

MORE PARK VISITORS.

Tourists visiting the National Parks of the United States during the present season numbered 2,218,618, according to the National Park Service. This is an increase of more than 138,000 visitors over last season.

THE PARIS SHOW.

Wide Variety of Cars on Show.

LUXURY AND PRICE.

Paris, Oct. 12.

With striking contrasts in luxury and price, evolution, rather than revolution, marked the twenty-fourth Automobile Salon held in the Grand Palais on the Champs Elysees. Greater comfort for both featured in the new models.

Beauty of line, with the utmost efficiency, is the 1931 ideal.

Of 95 different makes exhibited, 50 were French, 22 American, eight German, six British, six Italian, two Austrian and one Czechoslovakian. Motors of General Motors were notably absent, owing to a dispute with the directors over space allotment and in protest of recently increased taxation.

The majority of big manufacturers had made few changes in their models, but these proved great improvements, while the smaller makers showed greater boldness, probably in their desire to compete with the world-wide demand for cheaper cars of greater utility.

For touring and light commercial cars, four-cylinder motors strongly held their position, but in cars of higher power six-cylinders seem to be losing ground in favour of the eights. Battery ignition is generally displacing the old magneto ignition and transmissions with silencing apparatus are becoming more general.

Front-Drive Sixteen!

There are several front-wheel drive cars, one of the most interesting being the Bugatti, a 16-cylinder front-drive sports model. This consists of two eights, complete with carburetor and coil ignition, placed side by side, their respective crankshafts being geared to a layshaft that carries the drive to the gear box ahead of the engine.

With the new developments, the driver should find things easier. Several of the cheaper mass-production cars, including the Citroen and the Renault, are equipped with the new type of four-speed gear box.

The trend for design, however, is towards larger engines and bigger cars, despite the popularity of the smaller cars. Increased robustness, higher speed and ease of handling are winning buyers.

Interest in U. S. Cars.

The American exhibits drew a large share of attention. They are especially marked for their completeness of equipment and staunch power range offered in the different price classes. They compare well with the specialized, hand-made products of several European companies.

Comforts and conveniences are featured with wider bodies and better cushion equipment, but these have been achieved without sacrifice of beauty and smooth lines. Body construction, including hoods, reflect ideas of modern industrial art.

The biggest car attracted much attention. It was a veritable pullman built by Bernard with nine large, deep seats, arranged three and three, and a sliding roof. It was of the limousine type. A handle in the tonneau slid the roof into the rear of the coachwork, where it disappeared entirely. The hood of this car came up to the average shoulder.

From Czechoslovakia.

The Czechoslovak exhibit caused much comment. It showed a powerful 12-cylinder chassis, which was a revolutionary departure in design.

The V-shape motor drives the front wheels, but there is no chassis frame connecting the front and rear units. These are joined and supported by a huge steel tube from just behind the motor to the centre of the rear axle.

Wooden wheels were even more rare than last year, being found on only two or three cars in the salon. Everything was disc, convex or double-turned, or wire wheels. Hub caps were generally much larger and far more ornate, in some cases measuring 10 or 12 inches in diameter, with the crest of the manufacturer in highly decorative embellishments.

Bumpers were more ornate and sturdier than last year, with an inclination toward the German type of great rectangular or round bars often finished at the ends with great blocks of solid rubber.

1,000 MILES A YEAR.

Louisiana has started off on a road building campaign which will see 3,000 miles of paved highway constructed within the state by the end of 1933. It is estimated. Present plans call for a yearly construction of 1,000 miles.

BLAZING NEW ROAD THROUGH MEXICO.

Oxen had to be used to pull the cars of the American road-mapping party in Mexico up rough hills like that in centre photo. Rocks, like those at right, cluttered the way, while rivers had to be crossed as shown at top. Map shows the route.

Los Angeles, Oct. 27.—An auto trip of 2,280 miles, over roads and trails strewn with huge boulders and rocks, barred by rivers and steep grades, sometimes composed of axle-deep mud, at an average speed of hardly 12 miles an hour, is no pleasure trip.

But it formed one of the most thrilling adventures ever taken by an auto cavalcade when nine men in five automobiles sent by the Automobile Club of Southern California set out to blaze part of the 12,000-mile Pacific Highway which is to run from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Santiago, Chile, and Buenos Aires, Argentina.

To date, the route has been mapped from Hazelton, B.C., to Mexico City, a distance of 4,549 miles, and perhaps the most hazardous section, that from Nogales to Mexico City, was charted by the auto club expedition.

From the time the party entered Mexico, they travelled 1,600 miles to Mexico City in 35 days. Between the two cities 24 major rivers were crossed on crude ferries, poled by Yaqui Indians.

Party Carries Radio.

Along with the party was Vernon Sandham, radio operator. It was his duty to operate a short-wave set and keep the party in constant touch with civilization, for at some points on the route the expedition was hundreds of miles from the nearest town.

The radio outfit was carried in one of the cars having a truck body. Another car carried motion picture equipment, rifles and ammunition, tobacco, food and water.

A third car, in addition to baggage, had mounted on it two compasses, altimeter, gnomometer.

special mileages recorder and other instruments necessary for mapping the proposed highway. A road chairman sat before these instruments and noted every mile of the road in a chartbook, showing the flow of the water, topography of the mountains and adjacent land, isolated churches or other structures for identification to the future tourist, roads crossing or branching off with mileages between them, per cent. of grade, and the altitudes of all cities entered with mileages between these.

Notes were made of gasoline and other helpful stations. In fact a complete record of use both to engineer and tourist was brought back.

Let Road Dry First.

A heavy rain forced the caravan to lay over in Nogales for several days in order to permit the dirt road to dry up somewhat. Going wasn't bad even on these roads, however, until the party got to the famous Mexican "barrancas" or canyons, at Jalisco.

"Crossing the barrancas, better described as several grand canyons scrambled in all directions, was indeed a task," reports Sandham. "But two cars were risked through this country, the radio car and supply cars being loaded on the railroad and sent through."

"The road we were taking through the barrancas was one used 500 years ago to haul Spanish treasure from San Blas to the Atlantic coast for shipment in galleons to Spain. Its condition to-day could be well imagined. Storms over succeeding centuries have left but a vestige of a road. Even in those days their great high-wheeled wagons were hauled by oxen.

Sixteen Miles in Three Days.

"The two cars that undertook the passage progressed but three miles from sunset to sundown the first day. The grade out of the first canyon was 43 per cent, and block and tackle were used for 400 yards, with oxen holding the car on the road so that it would not disappear with its driver into oblivion in the abyss beneath. Three days were required for the passage of 16 miles. The party ran out of water and food and, when Magdalena was reached, were unable to talk."

Rivers offered considerable trouble to the expedition, Sandham says. The equipment had to be ferried across on "pangos" or lashed pole boats of the Yaqui Indians. Streams were forded with water up to the doors of the cars. Quicksand often entrapped the cars and in such event a cable hoist had to be employed to rescue them.

"On other stretches of road," Sandham continues, "we had to traverse solid masses of boulders for scores of miles. The frames of the cars were twisted into such shapes that the tip of a front fender would to that progress was halted until the car could be lifted from its predicament."

"Occasionally a tire rod would bend double and the front wheels turn out in opposite directions. A rope fastened to the car ahead would pull the rod out straight again. Many of the shock absorbers had to be removed, as the abnormal twisting would pull the arm down and throw it back on the other side, thus reversing the action."

MAKING MOTORING EASIER.

Now it's not even necessary for a motorist to get out of his car to do his shopping. The "Driver-Sent Shop," a new idea being tested in Colorado, is a steel cabinet that can be placed near the gasoline pump at filling stations. This cabinet displays accessories and other wares in such a way that the driver has only to reach out and take what he wants.

ALL-CANADA ROAD.

An all-Canadian motor road from coast to coast is practically spelt disaster to motorists miring their wheels in it.

IN ENGLAND.

Motoring on the Increase.

One may judge of the popularity of British motor touring from the fact that the British Automobile Association, during August, received some 26 letters for each working minute and that approximately 1,872,000 miles of prepared itineraries were posted every day.

An analysis of output indicates that motor touring increased about 15 per cent. over 1929, while the influx of foreign visitors rose by an even higher percentage. American visitors—despite the slump on Wall Street—were more numerous than ever, and the cross-channel traffic to and from the Continent has never been heavier.

NEW QUEBEC ROADS.

Quebec is to spend about $11,000,000 this year on the completion of 5 highways into the northern section of the Canadian province. These roads will open virgin land to tourists.

DEALERS INCREASE.

In 1910 there were only 8,402 automobile dealers in the United States. On January 1, 1930, there were more than 54,000.

BRITISH FILMS EVERYWHERE.

NEW COMPANIES IN BIG SCHEME.

An important scheme is now approaching fruition whereby British films will be used not only throughout the Empire, but also throughout the world as a means of disseminating British culture. This will be one result at least of the Imperial Conference.

Plans are complete for the formation of two new organisations, to be named the British Empire Film Board and the British Empire Finance Corporation. Both will be integral parts of the scheme, but each will function in a different way.

As long ago as March last year and again in August last year the Morning Post suggested—and even implied—the British film industry to get together and organise, along similar lines to the Hays organisation in America, so that they had a "triple spearhead" for disseminating British propaganda throughout the world.

The Americans have proved that "Trade follows the Film," and the Americans had also proved that for every foot of film shown in foreign countries one dollar's worth of trade had resulted. The advent of the talkies and the great improvement in British films have made these suggestions practicable and the British Empire Film Board and the Finance Corporation are being organised to carry out the scheme.

Purchase of Theatres.

The British Empire Finance Corporation which will have, for its main object, the distribution of British films throughout the world may well become the main publicity agency for all British goods. Its original function will be to see that British films are given an adequate representation throughout the most important markets. Where it is difficult to show British films, theatres will be purchased, and in those Dominions and Colonies where, at the present time, cinemas are under a very irresponsible direction, opposition theatres will either be purchased or built. Already great interest in this project has been evinced, and two famous Dominion financiers are keenly interested.

The British Empire Film Board will act more in an advisory position. Its object will be to decide which British films are suitable for particular Dominions, Colonies, or foreign markets, and to advise on the making of educational, cultural, instructional, and medical films.

It is suggested that financial and commercial authorities of the eminence of Sir Robert Kindersley, Lord Ebbisham, Lord Barnby, and Sir Eric Geddes may be connected with this important enterprise.

Any film made in England will have to state when its title is shown that it is a British film, and when the film is finished to show as a sub-title, "You have just seen a British film."

The British industry itself has at last come down to a working rock-bottom. The quota boom companies have disappeared and the present companies are turning out films which, in the words of a famous authority, are "second to none." The latest sign that the industry is really being organised on an efficient basis is to be found in the circumstantial rumour that two of the most important firms, British International and British Instructional, have come to an arrangement whereby their distributing organisations shall be "rationalised."

AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

H.E. THE GOVERNOR PRESENTS CUP.

In connexion with the Agricultural Show to be held on December 27th and 28th, at the Shek Woo Hui, near the Shoung Shui Railway Station, it is understood that the members of the Executive Committee of the New Territories Agricultural Show are very busy with the preparations for the event. The Executive Committee is most grateful to His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.B.E., C.M.G., for the donation of a silver challenge cup which will be awarded to the District that has won the highest number of prizes in both China and foreign vegetables for two years in succession. The silver cup is most beautifully set in a glass mahogany case. It is the intention of the Executive Committee to request the District winning the Governor's cup to place it in the custody of the Assembly Hall of the District.

Lady Peel's Interest.

It is understood that Lady Peel has taken kindly interest in the poultry section of the Show and may be sending in exhibits.

The Hongkong Government has contributed $1,000 towards the erection of the matchless house the coming Show and it is known that the contractors will commence work in a few days. The Exhibits Sub-Committee has already received a big entry from the villagers and it is estimated that the exhibits will be increased this year to about 4,000 to 5,000.

Generous Donors.

Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones has contributed $30 towards the prize fund to be used in mementos which the Show Committee desires best. The Committee is also grateful to Mr. Owen Hughes who has continued to contribute $25. The Committee is fortunate in having the valued assistance of the following this year: Dr. G. A. C. Herklotz, of the Department of Biology of the University; Rev. J. Horace Johnston, B.A., of the Union Church, Kowloon; Mr. R. Baker, Manager and Chief Engineer of the Canton-Kowloon Railway (British Section); Mr. J. Russell and Mr. J. Whyte, of the Taikeo Dockyard; Dr. K. H. Utley, Kowloon Hospital; Mr. H. S. Jones, Hongkong Electrical Company; Mr. E. R. Dovey, Government Analyst; Mr. Lo Shui-kwong. The Committee also wishes to acknowledge generous support from firms, Banks and commercial houses and individuals in Hongkong and Kowloon.

Mrs. E. I. Wynne-Jones has kindly consented to distribute the prizes at the conclusion of the Show on December 28th, at 2.30 p.m.

In future, the annual show will be held under the auspices of the New Territories Agriculture Association. The Association has been formed and the Memorandum of Articles have been signed at the office of Messrs. Deacons by Rev. H. R. Wells, Lady Ho Tung, and Messrs. J. D. Bush, Fung Ki-chauk, Tang Wal-tong, Tsai Potin, and T. P. Tong. The Association is now in course of registration.

ACQUITANIA'S STORMY CROSSING.

SEAS WASH OVER FORWARD DECK.

New York, Nov. 9. The Cunard liner Aquitania, a day late, with a small forward ventilator smashed but otherwise undamaged, arrived yesterday after a storm which Captain E. G. Diggle described as one of the worst he had experienced in 40 years of the North Atlantic.

A striking photograph showed how mountainous seas set the forward deck awash and dashed spray against the bridge. Passengers described the voyage as comfortable, although during the height of the storm some were permitted on the promenade deck. Twice the storm forced the vessel to reduce her speed to six knots, and the resultant delay caused three passengers to miss their connections in New York.

Owing to the late arrival of a Pekingese dog on board, which was scheduled to appear yesterday at a show in Boston, an aeroplane was chartered, and, in spite of its stormy crossing and the air trip, it was awarded the first prize.

ELECTORAL REFORM.

GOVERNMENT MEETS WISHES OF LIBERALS.

London, Dec. 5. Mr. Lloyd George in a speech at the National Liberal Club denied the existence of a Liberal-Labour pact.

He said the Liberals were determined to get electoral reform, and if unable to obtain proportional representation they ought to accept the alternative vote and thus secure the defeat of protection, unless a majority in the country really wanted protection.

It is noteworthy that Mr. MacDonald announced in the House of Commons yesterday evening his intention of introducing the Electoral Reform Bill before Christmas.

Listeners Lukewarm.

There was lukewarm enthusiasm during Mr. Lloyd George's speech, which was addressed to Liberal candidates and Commons.

This was in marked contrast to the loud cheers when Sir Herbert Samuel afterwards tersely defined the Liberal policy as hearty co-operation when the Government adopts measures in accordance with the Liberal policy, but otherwise frank opposition and the maintenance of Liberal independence under all circumstances.

Mr. Lloyd George's allusion to electoral reform is interpreted to mean that the Government offered to include in the new Bill the alternative vote, which Mr. Lloyd George does not like but is willing to accept for want of something better.

The Premier's announcement that he hopes the Electoral Reform Bill will formally be introduced in the House of Commons before Christmas has created great political interest, because of its bearing upon the relations between the Government and the Liberal Party.

The Liberals strongly favour electoral reform, and the Government's decision is considered by many newspapers as an indication that the Government will still be assured of an adequate measure of Liberal Parliamentary support for a considerable time to come.

The Labour organ, the Daily Herald, states that details of the measure are still the subject of conversation between the Government and the Liberals.—Reuter and British Wireless.

DANCING TOUR TO FAR EAST.

EVIDENCE OF MME. PAVLOVA'S HUSBAND.

The hearing was resumed recently of the action in which Madame Anna Pavlova and her husband, M. V. Dandré, are sued by Miss Elsie M. V. Dandré, formerly a dancing partner of Madame Pavlova's touring troupe, for damages for slander.

The issue is whether certain words reflecting on the chastity of Miss d'Arcy were uttered by M. Dandré, who was acting at the time as agent of his wife. The defence is a denial that M. Dandré published the words complained of. The action arises out of an incident during a tour in the Far East.

Mrs. Violet Frances d'Arcy, the plaintiff's mother, describing an interview which she had with M. Dandré, said that she asked: "What is this immoral and indecent conduct of which you accuse my daughter?" He kept blinking and she did not look at her. She asked him what Madame Pavlova intended to do to rectify matters. He did not answer the question, but said: "You know, Madam, I told Madame Pavlova that she was wrong."

Mr. Hilbery, opening the case for the defendants, said that it was suggested that the words complained of were true. The defendants' case was that there was no attack upon Miss d'Arcy with any imputation upon her chastity.

M. Dandré, giving evidence, said that on the journey out he noticed Mr. Slavinski paying attention to Miss d'Arcy. He advised her not to be too friendly with him. "It was a very strict thing in my company," added M. Dandré, "that the artists must regard the theatre, the steamship, and the railway station as official places, where their behaviour must be very correct and strict."

M. Dandré denied that he said to Mr. Slavinski that Miss d'Arcy was not performing because of her immoral and indecent behaviour on the boat with Mr. Slavinski. M. Dandré also denied that he told Miss d'Arcy that Madame Pavlova said that she had seen her behaving in an immoral and indecent manner with Mr. Slavinski.

The hearing was adjourned.

Mr. A. H. Gordon arrived by the P. and O. S. Rawalpindi to inspect Agencies and the work being carried out by Callender's Cable and Construction Co.'s engineers, and the 22,000 Volt High Tension Transmission Line supplying Electricity to Panjand and other parts of the New Territories.

BRITISH FOREIGN POLICY.

MR. HENDERSON'S ARTICLE IN A SWISS PAPER.

Geneva, Nov. 9. A plain statement of Great Britain's foreign policy, written by Mr. Arthur Henderson, the British Foreign Secretary, appears as a leading article in to-day's Neue Zürcher Zeitung.

Mr. Henderson is not attending the present session of the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference, but this article is taken in League circles as a personal intervention by the British Foreign Secretary in the proceedings and as a direct hint to the delegates here to get something done at last.

"The present economic crisis throughout the world," writes Mr. Henderson, "naturally strengthens the position of those who advocate political isolation and the narrow-minded policy of covering national needs by home production. But such a policy is contradictory to the efforts and spirit of the League of Nations and only serves to aggravate and prolong economic sickness."

"General prosperity can only come by setting the machinery of the League of Nations in motion and mobilising all the forces of world economy. The Economic Conference of 1927 proved that States recognised this necessity; it now remains to translate that recognition into deeds."

Tariff Policy.

Mr. Henderson proceeds to restate the tariff policy of the British Labour Government, which aims at a general diminution of internal trade barriers.

Great Britain's Nineteenth Century policy of "laissez faire" has long since been renounced. But to maintain that the report of the Trade Union Congress indicates a change in the attitude of the Trade Unions on the tariff question only shows how irresponsible is the Protectionist agitation in Great Britain to-day.

The League of Nations, he says, should strive for the establishing of internal control and organisation of the raw material markets, the improvement of labour conditions, a systematic organisation of economic processes and production, and the pacific settlement of all internal problems and disputes.

"Unfortunately," he adds, "time is not working in favour of those statesmen who hold that disarmament represents the most effective security."

"The dragging on of the disarmament negotiations has aroused in the whole world an impatience which is also expressed in varying degrees in the internal policies of many countries. This psychological situation is at once a warning for the people who rest on self-content and a unique opportunity for the League of Nations."

£5,000 DEFICIENCY.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST DEAD CLERK.

A deficiency of £5,000 in the accounts of the Swinton (Lancashire) Burial Board has been brought to light by a Ministry of Health audit.

The late Mr. W. T. Postlethwaite, who died five months ago, was clerk to the board for many years, and the deficiency is alleged to be the result of defalcations over a period of 21 years. Mr. Postlethwaite was also clerk to the Swinton and Pendlebury Urban District Council and assistant overseer and clerk to the Education Committee.

He had been secretary of the Lancashire Urban District Council Association since its formation. It is stated that a claim will be made against the estate of Mr. Postlethwaite, who is survived by his wife.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS.

DIFFICULT SITUATION CREATED.

Paris, Dec. 5. It is noteworthy that the defeat of the Government follows the resignation of the Minister of Justice, M. Raoul Poret, on the 18th ulto, to enable him to give evidence before the Parliamentary Commission in connexion with the Oustric Bank case, also the resignations of M. M. Falcoz and Lautier.

M. Tardieu has definitely declared that he will not participate in the new Government and it is also doubtful whether M. Poincaré and M. Briand will participate, hence the situation is a very difficult one and a Government may not be formed before the end of next week.—Reuter.

THE "JOY RIDE" EVIL. AIRCRAFT CAR "BORROWED" AND RETURNED.

Consequent on a report made to the Yau-matli Police Station by Flying Officer Harvey, of Kaitack Aerodrome, the Police at Kowloon for the greater part of yesterday afternoon were engaged in looking for a Ford car belonging to the officer which had been spirited away from its parking place at the Star Ferry Pier.

Later, however, the car was found, audaciously returned to the spot from where it was taken, but of the person who had thus managed to steal a joy-ride in the vehicle there was no sign. It is some little while since several similar incidents were reported to the Police.

PULVERISED COAL.

MR. G. BUCHANAN'S LECTURE TO ENGINEERS.

An interesting paper entitled "Calorimetry in Relation to Pulverised Coal" was read by Mr. G. Buchanan to members of the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders yesterday afternoon. Mr. R. M. Dyer presided.

The speaker, in his opening remarks, dealt with the gases contained in coal, the effect of atmospheric exposure, and went on to speak of its use as applied to steam engines. He said that in burning pulverised coal it was not only advisable, but essential, that the engineer should have a knowledge of calorimetry and coal testing in order that he might burn his coal to the greatest advantage.

Mr. Buchanan went on to deal with the method of testing coal and testing it for moisture, after which he spoke of tests for volatile matter, carbon and ash.

The calorific value and evaporative power of coal was ascertained by the use of the calorimeter. The principles of calorimetry were the combustion of a known quantity of coal submerged in, and in actual contact with, a known quantity of water, thus imparting the heat from the combustion of the coal directly to the water.

The speaker dealt in detail with the technical side of the matter, including the burning of pulverised coal, waste gases, waste gas samples and steam without boilers, saying with regard to the latter that the introduction of pulverised coal came as a departure from the antiquated system of burning coal in a fire grate, and the experience gained might now lead to an entirely new phase in steam raising with coal.

Since coal could be exploded and also burned whilst submerged and in actual contact with water, it did not seem very far removed from exploding coal in the presence of water, and so generate steam as distinct from the use of boilers as known to-day. With combination of chemical knowledge and engineering skill, together with money and time to experiment, the idea should soon be brought to a practical application.

3 MEN ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY.

25,000 IN SURETIES FOR EACH MAN.

Alleged share frauds totalling 250,000 were referred to at the Mansion House when three men were charged with conspiring together and with others unknown to defraud such people as could be induced to part with money to the Broad Street Press, Ltd.

The defendants were Herbert John Spellen (57), journalist; Joseph Wise (47), diamond merchant; and Stanley Victor Moncrieff (35), clerk.

They were remanded for a week, bail being fixed for each defendant in two sureties of £2,500 and each defendant's own recognisances of £5,000.

Mr. Wallace, for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said the Broad Street Press, Ltd., published a paper called "Finance and Stock Exchange Observer," which was sent all over the country.

Profit and Loss.

People with whom they got into communication were at times advised to buy shares in a perfectly sound concern, and in some cases these clients had undoubtedly made a profit.

Counsel said that, having thus encouraged the clients to think they were dealing with a bona fide firm, the defendants advised them to buy shares in Vulcan Copper Mines, Limited, Asbestos and Trusts Holdings, Limited, and other companies whose shares were not worth the paper they were written on.

Mr. Wallace alleged that the defendants were the principals in the Broad Street Press, Limited. "The company is now in the Companies Liquidation Department," he said, "and the sum of money they have got away with is well over half a million."

Mr. Robinson (for Spellen) said there was no foundation for suggesting that any such amount, directly or indirectly, passed through his client's hands.

Executing the Warrant.

On Saturday a warrant was granted at the Guildhall, and in the afternoon two police officers went to Mr. Spellen's flat and saw a woman.

When Mr. Spellen telephoned she told him two police officers were waiting to see him. Instead of trying to hide himself, Spellen took a taxi to his (Mr. Robinson's) office and consulted him as to the right thing to do. As a result, the police were telephoned to and told to come and execute the warrant.

Mr. Robinson added that Spellen was not a director of the company, but a servant.

It was stated that Spellen and Wise both had passports which they were prepared to hand over. Moncrieff had no passport.

Mr. de Meza said that he was instructed that Wise was a diamond merchant and knew nothing at all about the matter.

Judge Denounces Company.

"This company has been a fraud from the start," said Mr. Justice Maugham, in the Chancery Division in making an order for the compulsory winding up of the Broad Street Press, Limited.

The petitioner was Miss Edith Oorum, and she was supported by a list of 43 people who had claims against the company for £61,497. Mr. Archer, K.C., who appeared for Miss Oorum and 28 others representing £34,167, said there was no opposition.

Mr. J. B. Lindon said he appeared for the voluntary liquidator, who would be very glad if a compulsory order was made. There was undoubtedly a large number of people who had claims against the company for fraudulent representation.

Mr. Granville Sharp said he appeared for two of the directors, Messrs. Paris and Osborne, who were entirely innocent parties and were doing their best to assist the Official Receiver.

Judge's Statement.

In making the order Mr. Justice Maugham said it was a case in which it was desirable that he should make a statement.

The company was formed on Sept. 8, 1928, with a registered office in Lincoln's Inn Fields, and a nominal capital of £5,000 in £1 shares. The original allottees were Mr. Paris and a Mr. Osborne, who had informed the Official Receiver that they paid nothing for their shares.

These gentlemen were the directors of the company, and according to their counsel, they were puppets in the hands of other persons.

The company published a weekly paper first called "The City News and Stock Exchange Observer," and later on "Finance."

Canvassers.

The stock and share department was established and people were so ill-judged as to do business with it. Business was also done all over England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland through canvassers, who made statements that were wholly untrue.

Hundreds of people all over the country, proceeded the Judge, were induced to sell valuable securities

DUNBAR STABLE MAY WIN DOUBLE.

GOOD FIELDS EXPECTED FOR THIS AFTERNOON.

In addition to eight flat races, the Committee of the Hongkong Jockey Club has revived a hurdle race of six or eight flights for the 12th Extra Race Meeting which is to take place at Happy Valley this afternoon, the first race to start at 1.30 p.m. sharp.

There will be six handicap, and three open, events for decision, and as some of the best ponies will be out in opposition some very good racing should result. There should be some big fields attending the starter, especially in the "B" Class events and some tight finishes are expected, particularly in the handicap races.

The principal race of the day will be the 5th race which is the November Handicap over one and a quarter miles. Five excellent ponies in Sitting Bull, President Hall, Wisdom Star, King's Colour and Peppercorn will be saddled here and one of the best races of the season should be witnessed for this good class event.

The Sussex Plate should also prove very interesting, as a good field is promised to turn out.

A WIFE'S TONGUE.

HUSBAND RESPONSIBLE.

Damages of £800 for slander and £5 for assault were awarded to Mrs. Rhoda Elisabeth Flanders, a dog breeder, of Rupert-street, W., in her action against Sir Charles and Lady Eves, of Chestnut Lodge, Horsham, in the King's Bench Division.

Mrs. Flanders alleged that after taking back three dogs which had been boarded at her kennels, Lady Eves called her a bluffer and a thief, used another epithet and struck her.

Sir Charles Eves was added as a defendant as being liable for his wife's torts.

Husband's "Privilege."

Mr. Justice, Avory said that if the jury concluded that Lady Eves so far lost her temper as to commit an assault upon Mrs. Flanders it might throw some light upon the probability of her having used the disgraceful language suggested.

"I am making no distinction here between Sir Charles and Lady Eves," Mr. Justice Avory proceeded, "because one of the remaining privileges of a husband, if it can be called a privilege, is that he is responsible for the one thing he cannot control, and that is his wife's tongue." (Laughter.)

and allow the proceeds to be invested in worthless shares.

Miss Oorum, the unfortunate petitioner, was like hundreds of others, allowed to make a small profit in the same way that the three-card tricksters and thimble riggers gull their victims, and then, having got their dupes to repose confidence in them, they proceed to defraud them.

The result was, continued the Judge, that these people had lost several hundred thousand pounds. Last month the company began to have writs issued against it by luckless subscribers for shares, with the result that those in charge of the company had thought it well to disappear.

LIBERALS AND SHIPLEY.

SIR HERBERT SAMUEL AND A VOTING ANOMALY.

Sir Herbert Samuel, M.P., speaking at a reception at Portchester terrace, W., to the European delegates attending the Second International Conference of Young Liberal Societies, referred to the result of the Shipley by-election.

"When the votes were counted it was found that 15,000 electors had declared themselves in favour of the policy known as Safeguarding, and 25,000 against it. Yet it is claimed to be a great victory for the Safeguarding policy," he stated.

"This strange perversion is due to the inadequacy of our system of election. This is the only country in Europe which still retains a method which allows such ridiculous anomalies. It permits, in the Shipley election, a vote of nearly two to one against Safeguarding, and yet the election of a member to Parliament to vote in its favour.

"It would permit—and the possibility is not a distant one—at the next General Election a majority of a million to three million votes in favour of Free Trade, and the majority of 50, 100, or 150 members in the House of Commons against it.

"That would be a great peril to the smooth working of our Constitution, and the Liberal Party is strongly advocating an early change in order to obviate that danger."

OPIMUM DISCOVERY INCIDENT.

LOQUACIOUS DENIALS OF OWNERSHIP.

A Chinese man and woman were before Mr. Lindell this morning on a charge of possession of nearly 80 tins of raw and prepared opium of non-monopoly origin. Mr. F. X. D'Almada represented the woman defendant.

Revenue Officer Grimmit stated a raid was carried out on a floor at Second St., and a box was found of which neither would admit ownership. Eventually he had to force it open, and on the opium being discovered, the one defendant blamed the other. "I could not get a word in," said Mr. Grimmit.

The case was adjourned to enable Mr. D'Almada to consult his client.
